MEMORABILIA.

IN TWO PARTS—PART FIRST.

North Yarmouth is one of the oldest towns of our State. The grant was made in 1680. It received its name Sept. 22 of that year, though persons settled upon the territory forty years before and erected a "stone garrison house" as a means of protection against attacks by the Indians, but the savages drove off the English intruders and destroyed their improvements and the whole territory became a waste, and thus remained till 1722. North Yarmouth was originally granted with additions was a very large town, from which Freeport was set off in 1783, and from Freeport Pownal was set off and incorporated Mar. 3, 1808. From Portland to Pownal it is seventeen miles in a northerly direction. It is bounded upon the south-east by Freeport, northeast by Durham which is in Androscoggin county, northwest by New Gloucester and westerly by North Yarmouth, the Grand Trunk railroad passing through the extreme western corner of the town. Two branches of the long Royal river, with sluggish water penetrate if they do not pass clear through the place. The land is somewhat undulating in its formation, but above the average of the State for farming purposes, and to farming the people look for support, and by the sweat of the brow it comes, the tax money from the sale of hay, neat stock, butter, and eggs, but more particularly milk which goes to Portland.

For religious instruction the inhabitants first depended upon Freeport and in 1709 received four services a year from the Congregationalist but in 1807, the year before Pownal was made an independent municipality, all existing religious alliances were removed when a church society was formed, and the first large church edifice erected that stands today at Pownal Center, a monument to the praise of the generation of that day, and all along down to the present for keeping the structure in the fine state of preservation, the architectural outlines of which considering the long time of its existence, are extremely pleasing to behold. Adjacent, according to usage of that period, a cemetery is attached in which repose the earthly remains of Dr. Nathaniel T. True's mother.

Pownal Center is somewhat of a True neighborhood as the municipality is a True town, maps, modern and ancient, being dotted by the True name. At the Center the postmaster was by name at one time a True, as is the shop-keeper now, including the "village blacksmith" who was a brother to the Doctor, now deceased, and at one time the Doctor's father made one of the traders in company with a son, but he did not remain long, preferring to "hold the plow or drive," and returned to farm life.

His farm was located a mile or two southeasterly from Pownal Center, part of which remains in the name of Charles L. True, a grand nephew of the Doctor, who occupies the premises which appear to the passerby, more particularly the buildings, shaded by tall elm trees, well cared for door yard, swinging chair, lattice enclosed well, and a well-trained watchdog, in which house the Doctor's father left the world. His original residence stood upon the opposite side of the way and a few rods to the westward which was destroyed by fire in 1820. A little farther along is the schoolhouse in a good state of repair but going extensively from this True residence about a stone's throw is a grave yard, somewhat modern in appearance with an enclosing iron fence, located upon sandy soil, sloping to the south, upon a true donation of land, for burial purposes, may be seen a large marble slab inscribing the uneducated beholder, which condition then fitted the writer hereof, that within the enclosure are deposited the worldly remains of Dr. True's father and a brother. With an occasional head I bowed in reverence, then I copied the following:

A TRIP ACROSS THE PRESIDENTIAL RANGE.

The party consisted of H. C. Rowe, Mr. Curtis, Harold Rich, Carroll Venable and Charles Tuell. Winfield Wright was to have gone but had to give it up at the last moment.

We took the train for Gorham, Wednesday morning of last week. Mr. Rowe and autos engaged and gave us all the ride to the Glen House. He said, "I did other characteristically kind things, which added much to the party's pleasure especially."

After lunching and adjusting our packs we started up Tuckerman's Ravine as none of the party had ever taken that route. The beauty of the scenery waned us on past that little grove, Hermit Lake, on to the sight of the Thousand streams almost without fatigue. When we reached what is usually the snow arch at this season, it was just beginning to form. We walked across the snow for some rods, over what will be the arch and began the ascent of the head-wall. This put lung and limb and heart to the test; but we all made it in good form and arrived at the tip top house right glad to be there.

The night was even cooler than we had expected, it made three eights of an inch of ice, and some of us did not sleep as warm as we would have liked. But sun rise brought us out all right and it was beautiful beyond description.

Thursday morning we started across the range. Soon we saw the train was out from the foot of the mountain creeping toward us. We were in a favorable position so waited to see it make the ascent and it was a sight well worth waiting for. Then we went on over clay and up to the pinnacle of Jefferson, lunching between that and Adams. The day was almost perfect and the views magnificent. I can not see how people as near as we are and who are physically able to reach it can hold themselves away from such grandeur. The descent of the peak of Adams was the roughest thing we struck for the day and we were glad enough to reach Madison but not a place to rest. We had a right comfortable night here.

The next morning we were on Madison peak a little after sunrise watching the play of the fog through the valleys and up and down the mountains, giving a most pleasing mass of light and shade and a panorama of rare beauty. As we took our way down to the valley we supported our feet and saw all that was worth seeing. But as we passed down Schiller brook gem after gem of beauty held our gaze entranced. What we saw on that morning walk was worth the whole trip to some of us. If you do not believe it try that yourself, it is quite easily accessible if you use the Grand Trunk and the Boston and Maine, or go as far as you can in your auto.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATIONS.

Rumford High.

On Thursday evening the class of 1913 of the Rumford High School held their graduating exercises in the Cheney Opera House. Long before the time set for the exercises to begin the place was filled to its utmost capacity and many were standing. The place was most attractively decorated with red and white, and directly over the stage was the class motto in large letters, "Finis Opus Coronat." "The end crowns the work."

At a little past eight the graduating class appeared, marshalled by Miss Frances Wheeler, and marched to their places on the platform. A selected orchestra furnished music for the occasion, with Arthur Kendall of Lewiston at the piano.

The school orchestra, which has been enthusiastically rehearsed by Prof. D. B. Charon, gave several selections, and the large school chorus, which has been drilled by Miss Dently, instructor in music in the town schools, was well received in its excellent numbers.

The program was as follows:

Prayer, Rev. W. T. Garber

Salutatory, Grace M. Hoyt

Class History, Ralph Edwin Woodsum

Selection, "The Inefficiency of the Public School," Sadie M. Whyte

Selection, "The End Crowns the Work," Philip E. Hoyt

Class Will, Cecil L. Graves

Class Prophecy, Frances E. Wheat

Solo, "The Perfect Day," Jean Mair

Oration, Charles O. Dutton

Valedictory, Margaret M. McMaster

Cello solo, Carl Brown

Presentation of diplomas, W. H. S. Ellingswood

Selection, Orchestra

Each one of the participants in the exercises showed that they were much at home and very easy in their manner and their essays denoted a large amount of time and effort expended and not expended in vain. There were seventeen members in the class, which is the largest class ever graduated from the Rumford High School. Both teachers and scholars may feel that their work has been well spent and that in the words of the class motto, "The end crowns the work."

Of the graduates, Graves was manager, and Dutton as ex-captain and member of the crack basketball team which made such a splendid showing last season. The seventeen graduates and the several courses pursued are: College Preparatory Course—James E. Dyer, Charles O. Dutton, Cecil L. Hoy Graves, Emerson Rawley, Frances E. Wheat, Ralph E. Woodsum. AUTO COP FOR RUMFORD CENTER.

The residents of Rumford Center say that they have had automobiles race through their village long enough and that they are going to have it stopped.

A "trap" has already been laid out and a special constable stationed there to seize him who dares to travel faster than a walk through the village. The law will be enforced on everybody, doctors as well as other autoists. The idea that doctors have a special privilege to drive fast, will not go in Rumford Center. Every medicine man will have to toe the mark or pay a fine in court.

The women of the village say that when they leave windows and doors open, the house is filled with dust caused by swift passing of automobiles, whereas if they were driven at a reasonable speed, there would be no dust to speak of.

RUMFORD ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

On Friday evening the members of the Rumford Alumni Association gave a reception to the graduating class and to the basketball team. The members of both these organizations were in the receiving line as was Lawrence W. Damon, the coach.

After the reception was over L. W. Blanchard, president of the Alumni Association, presented each member of the basketball team with a leather watch fob upon which was a small gold basket ball with the following inscription: R. H. S. B. Team, Champions 1912-1913, as a token of esteem for the good work which they had done on the basketball team for the past two seasons. These games have been watched by the members of the Alumni carefully and each year they have done something for the team to show their pride in the excellent showing which the team has made. Last year the Alumni gave a banquet to the team which was much appreciated by the boys, but this year it was felt that something more in the way of remembrance should be given the boys, and therefore the committee having the arrangements for the banquet decided upon the fob as a suitable memento.

None of the members of the team had any idea of the gift and were completely taken by surprise, but nevertheless heartily appreciated the gift and showed the same by their manners. Following the reception a dance was held. About forty-five couples were present. Each member of the Alumni had the privilege of inviting two guests and these with the total Alumni made up the number. Refreshments of punch and crackers were served throughout the evening and a general delightful time enjoyed.

AFTER BROWNTAILS.

Major Philbrook Is Now In Oxford County.

Major E. E. Philbrook, who has charge of the campaign waged by the State against pests, is now in Oxford county with a crew to exterminate the brown tail moth in that section. Major Philbrook during his several trips into the different parts of the State, finds the brown tail gypsy and tent caterpillar to be the pests that are doing the foliage.

The brown tail holds sway in many of the counties in the western section of the State, though the towns have taken care of them, on the shade trees, to a great extent, and it is only on the oaks, elms and old apple trees, where the caterpillars are now found. The gypsy moth, which is by far the more dangerous of the two, has invaded the southern part of the State, and has been found as far up river as Orono. This pest attacks all kinds of trees, even the evergreens, and should they succeed in reaching the forests in the northern part of Maine, much of the wild land which is practically inaccessible to a competent crew to fight the pest, might be entirely devastated.

The tent caterpillar is just reaching its full growth and the crew of Major Philbrook finds many of these throughout the State. Knox and Washington counties are remarkably free from pests.

There is greater wealth in the time men waste than in all the gold mines of the world.

"—Today, not tomorrow." The class ode was written by Miss Alice Rena Hunter.

Friends of Elmer R. Bowker of Bryant's Pond will be interested in the following clipping. William M. Harris, the newly elected president of Westbrook Seminary, recently announced that E. R. Bowker, who will graduate from Colby this year, has been selected to teach mathematics and to have charge of the base ball squad. Mr. Bowker has had considerable experience at teaching, having during his college course, taught mathematics for a year in Waterville High School. He was captain of the Colby baseball team last year.

Build up, gain knowledge,

I will go to raise my own body and soul into all the higher powers of joy and happiness, not in rivalship or competition with others, but for the delight and honor of others and the joy and peace of my

Courage, others do not stumble Thy path be dark as night, There's star to guide the humble,
"In God and do the right."
Thou'lt find the road be long and dreary,
And ending out of sight,
Foot bravely—strong or weary
—in God and do the right."

FOUNDATION STONES.

Essential foundations for a good education are, a child well born, good fresh air, and pleasant and cheerful surroundings. Fresh air is as necessary at night as during the day. By good food is not meant rich food, but as gives the best results in build-up and strengthening the body and mind. Mothers should learn what is it for their children, not just seek give them what they like to eat; although due regard should be given to that also. Some systems lack certain elements, and demand certain foods, to make up the deficiency, which under ordinary conditions, would not be proper foods. When such conditions arise or are suspected, a physician should be consulted as to a diet which should contain the proper elements required by the child's needs. Regularity in meals is another essential part of a child's education. Children who are allowed to eat when, how and where they please, not only upset their physical organs, but are being educated in haphazard ways which will be a detriment to them in many ways. Some mothers think they are kind to their children, because when a meal is prepared, and the children beg to "play a little longer," they do not insist on all coming to the table.

The meal is either missed entirely, or eaten cold and in scraps. The stomach will soon rebel and ill health follows.

Promiscuous eating between meals, too, is a poor education for future usefulness. If the time is too long between two regular meals, a slight lunch of plain food half way between breakfast and dinner, and dinner and supper, helps. Nothing is to be eaten between meals except at such times. No running in half a dozen times a day to rob the cookie jar, or beg for cake or pie, as I see a done in many homes.
I do not wonder that some children are always having headaches, and stomach trouble. I often wonder they live at all. Rush in, grab a few mouthfuls at meal times; then off to play. In an hour or so a raid is made and "something to eat" procured. Another hour and candy is demanded, and gatten-and thus it goes from hour to hour, from day to day, until the stomach, having had no rest, refuses to do its duty. This is a true picture of the appetite where self-control of the appetite is not taught. Regular habits of life are an education for future greatness.

DIPLOMATS FLIT HITHER.

Again Favor New England As Place
For Summer Loaf.

New England has ever been a favorite region for members of the diplomatic corps seeking a summer residence. From the plans already announced in Washington at the various embassies and legations this year is to be no exception.

Wherever the official representatives of a foreign country locate themselves on a summer holiday that place becomes to all intents and purposes foreign soil, hence New England should see flying this summer the flags of many lands. Five ambassadors with their staffs will sojourn in New England besides a lot of minor diplomats.

Newport, as usual, will see more diplomatic gold lace than other places.
The Russian Ambassador, the German Ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, and the Danish Minister, Constantin Brun, are all to make their summer residence there. Besides these Haniel von Haimhausen, Councillor of the German Embassy, and Baron Kurt von Lersner, and Baron Horst von Lersner of the Embassy staff will be at Newport as will M. Lysakovsky and M. Yonine, first and second secretaries of the Russian Embassy. It is expected that Senor Miano, the Spanish Minister, will summer either at Newport or Bar Harbor and the Greek Minister is considering one or the other of these places.

Bar Harbor will see Minister London and Mme. London of the Netherlands.
The Norwegian Minister and Mme.
Bryn have taken a cottage at Seal Harbor, Me.

As in several former years the summer embassy of Austria-Hungary will be located at Manchester on the North Shore. Ambassador Constantin Theodor Dumba has already established himself there and the naval attaché, Commander Maximilian Bartschy, Konstantin von Maslovitch, the first secretary, and Baron Karl von Prudensthal of the embassy's staff, will arrive there shortly.

The new British Ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring Rice, has chosen a new site for the British summer embassy, favoring the New Hampshire uplands.
He has selected Pyne-V-Maps, the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jeffrey Parsons at Dublin, N. H., as the spot where he will pass the summer. Lady Spring Rice and her children arrived on June 15th, and were taken at once to Dublin by the Ambassador. Last summer Alfred Mitchell Jones, councillor of the Embassy, had a summer home near Dublin and liked it so well that he induced the new Ambassador to select that spot.

Counsellor Jones with Mrs. Jones will be in Dublin. Lord Eustace Percy of the Embassy staff will likewise be there.

The flag of Spain will fly over Eastern Point, Thursday, again this summer. Prince Tráides Prádanik has just opened up the Legation there. It has been located there now for many years.
Some of the Russian diplomats will seek the South Shore. A. Scherbatyky, counsellor of the Russian Embassy, has taken a cottage at Calumet and is staying there. At Falmouth Heights on Cape Cod, will be General Nicola Golepewski and his family.

If Mothers Only Knew!

By Dr. True

Nineteen-twentieths of the sickness of children have two causes: constipation and worms!

The danger of constipation is understood, but there are 50 different kinds of worms that may exist in the stomach and bowels, and children are especially apt to have them. Usually stomach and pin worms.

Signs of worms are: Indigestion, with a variable appetite; abnormal craving for sweets; nausea and vomiting; swollen upper lip; sour tongue; offensive breath; hard and full belly with occasional gripings and pains about the navel; face at one time flushed, then pale and in a few cases the face takes on a dull leaden hue; eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids; itching of the nose; itching of the rectum; short, dry cough; grinding of the teeth; starting and sticking out on tongue; starting during sleep; slow fever; pulse quickened and irregular; body may be hot; and often, in children, convulsions.

Rid the child of worms and you will have a healthy, happy child.

NOTE—Dr. True's own prescription, sold under the name of Dr. True's Elixir, is the best remedy in the world for worms.
It destroys all worm life, expels worms from the body and makes the child healthy again.

THE TROUBLE.

A fond mother who was entertaining friends at tea was mortified beyond measure to see her little son crowding food into his mouth with his knife.

"Elton," who finally remonstrated,
"what did I tell you about using your fork?"

"I know, mamma," confessed the youngster, "but this one looks awfully."

Most Children Have Worms

Many mothers think their children are suffering from indigestion, headache, nervousness, weakness, constipation, when they are victims of that most common of all children's ailments—worms. Fevers, ill-tempered, fretful children, who lose and grind their teeth, with bad breath and colicky pains, have all the symptoms of having worms, and should be given Kirkspoo Worm Killer, a pleasant candy lozenge, which expels worms, regulates the bowels, tones up the system, and makes children well and happy. Kirkspoo Worm Killer is guaranteed. All druggists, or by mail. Price, 25c. Kirkspoo Indian Medicine Co.,

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, it causes a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

O'Hare was a section foreman. He was showing a friend, who had just arrived from the old country, his section. They hadly reached a tunnel, and, as they were walking along, a train came rushing by at high speed, passed them, and dashed into the tunnel with a great roar.

O'Hare's friend gazed after the train with open mouth and staring eyes.

"Well," said O'Hare, "what do you think of this road? Don't you think I have a well-kept section of track?"

"Yes, indeed," said his friend, "but holy snakes! Just think what an awful calamity it would be if the train should miss the hole."

'GEMS.'

A LITTLE CHURCH GOER.
"Today's the very first time I ever went to church at all.
I couldn't go before because My mother said I was too small;
But now I've had a birthday, so I'm plenty big enough to go."
"I listened very hard today,
And set up just as still and good.
The people sang such lovely hymns,
And I sang, too, the best I could.
The preacher read the Bible twice—I think that church is very nice."
"My grandma, when she began To go to church, was only three;
And she's been going sixty years;
She says she guesses I will be Just like her—and I hope so, too; I'm going to church, my whole life through."
** * * *

WE REAP WHAT WE SOW.
For pleasure or pain, for weal or for woe,
'Tis the law of our being—we reap what we sow.
We may try to evade them—may do what we will—
But our acts, like our shadows, will follow us still.
The world is a wonderful chemist, he says,
And detects in a moment the base or the pure;
We may boast of our claims to genius or birth,
But the world takes a man for just what he is worth.
We start in the race for fortune or fame,
And then when we fail, the world
bears the blame,
But once times in ten, 'tis plain to be seen,
There's a "screw somewhere loose" in the human machine.

YELLOWSHIP.
If I can have it said of me,
When called it is my time of toil,
That I have fought to be helpful
And have not labored just for spoil, I'll greet Death's angel with a smile And take his hand and journey on, Believing that I've been worth while And still shall live although I've gone.
If words of mine shall only say That I was friendly to them all,
That I had time for them each day
And answered every person's call,
For help that fell upon my ears And tried to put my hand out here and there,
I shall not when Death's form appears,
Hold back, afraid to turn to face
him.

LOOKER'S MILLS.
If I can have it said of me
That I have loved my father's will,
That I have tried to be true to it,
That I have tried to be true to my friend,
That I have tried to be true to my life,
That I have tried to be true to my God,
I shall not when Death's form appears,
Hold back, afraid to turn to face
him.

HELP ONE ANOTHER.
We can never conquer the effort
That some people make to succeed
If they try to depend on their own strength.
We can never reach the stars for a crown
If we depend on our own strength.
We can never reach the stars for a crown
If we depend on our own strength.
